

Charlie “Horse” Manumaleuna

Alignment: Scrupulous Occupation: Taxi Driver P.C.C.: Psychic Diviner

You are Charlie Manumaleuna, 2nd born of six siblings in a military family from Honolulu, Hawaii. Being a pureblood Samoan, you grew up tall, stocky, very strong and proud of your heritage. Your parents are both “lifers” in the Navy and they instilled a love of traveling and adventure within you from a young age.

When you began to develop psychic divining abilities in your teens, your urge to travel only grew to the point of wanderlust. Naturally at age seventeen you joined the Navy and traveled all over the globe as a natural born pilot. After two tours of duty you decided to test your mettle elsewhere. Your random wanderings eventually led you to Seattle where you found work as a truck driver and eventually a taxi driver. While you still have moments of yearning to travel, your heart has found two loves since coming to Seattle; opportunities to destroy the supernatural, and the discovery of World of Warcraft. With your getting older and even more laidback about life, you find the prospect of traveling the big, expansive world of WOW to be a suitable alternative for real traveling.

You are known for being many things amongst your friends. One of them is being a very fun loving and laid back guy who’s fully adopted your native Hawaiian mentality to Just Hang Loose; another is being obnoxiously strong, even for a Samoan man. While your not as fit as you used to be in your Navy days (driving a taxi and countless hours of WOW these last few years have taken their toll on you) your still as strong as a horse and hence your given nickname Charlie Horse by all who know you. Most also know that your giant stature hides a teddy bear of a man on the inside, who has a soft spot for children and a pretty face.

While serving in the Navy, you’ve spent some time in a mechanic’s training course and could make it as a mechanic if you wanted to, but you’re happy with only working on your Taxi when it needs it. You’ve even tricked out your Taxi in a couple of ways, including a theft deterrent removable steering wheel. This steering wheel (named “Salma” after your first crush in grade school) has since become your favored dowsing rod (it has an attachable length of pipe to simulate the long section of a dowsing rod) for use in locating things or when hunting the supernatural. In humorous fashion, you use your dowsing rod like a steering wheel, turning it left and right as you follow a trail or lead.

As a Psychic Diviner you’re a great tracker and support member when in a group of paranormal investigators, which suits you just fine. You’re even laid back about the cause and effect of usually being point man during investigations (you are a tracker after all). With your military experience, incredible strength, and practice time at the local shooting range, you can hold your own in combat against the supernatural. And while the Lazlo Agency always seems to contact you at the worst times (always right in the middle of playing Warcraft), it’s a very worthy cause and your doing a lot of good for the world you’ve come to love so much.

